GIRL POINTS TO ASSAILANT

RAYMOND GUNN IS IDENTIFIED IN ASSAULT CASE

HAS NEGRO ATTORNEY

Teachers College Student Tells of Horrifying Experience on Lonely Walk

With an attorney of his own race defending him, Raymond Gunn, young Maryville negro, went to trial in Circuit Court today on a charge of having assaulted Miss Freda Florence Crouse, 20-year-old Mound City girl, a student in the State Teachers College here.

Miss Crouse herself was the prosecuting witness against Gunn. On the witness stand, she identified him as the assailant who, on the night of October 20, seized her as she passed along a secluded part of Seventh street on her way to the College.

"Is the man who assaulted you in this room now?" she was asked.

"He is," she answered, and pointed out Gunn.

The jury hearing the case is composed of Ed Archer, William Blackford, George Yates, L. E. Hill, Byron Hammond, Jake Birch, W. P. Huston, H. D. McDonald, Ed Goodpasture, J. L. Teson, J. R. Gibbs and Henry Thorp.

Courtroom Filled.

The courtroom was filled as L. Amasa Knox, negro attorney of Kansas City, was introduced as the defense attorney. In selection of the jury he asked each of the panel as to his home, his family, whether he knew the prosecuting witness, whether he had read of the case, discussed it or formed any opinion, and whether he had any prejudice against a member of the negro race. He asked prospective jurymen also if they had children in the State Teachers' College.

George Pat Wright, prosecuting attorney, made an opening statement outlining the state's case, but the defense attorney withheld his statement until after the state had presented its testimony.

The negro attorney objected several times to phraseology used by the prosecutor and each time was sustained by Judge John M. Dawson.

Presenting the case which he expected to prove, the county attorney stated that Miss Crouse roomed at the home of Mrs. Ed Egley and that on the night of the assault she started to the College about 7:10 p. m., on foot and alone. After passing Walnut street and as she approached the corner of a fenced field, just east of the Wabash railroad, she noticed a negro man standing. She stopped and called, "Who is it?" and the man answered, "It's all right, there's no harm," or words to that effect.

Pinioned to Ground.

The girl then passed the negro, according to the county attorney. About two feet past him she turned. The negro then seized her and dragged her back with him about twelve feet. Throwing her to the ground, he pinioned her with his knee and with two fingers of each hand held her mouth open so that she could make no outcry, meanwhile threatening her several times.

The girl, unable to free herself otherwise, resorted to persuasion, the county attorney said. When she told her assailant that she was past due at the College and that friends would be looking for her at any moment, he released her partially and looked around. A moment later he released her entirely but warned her to make no outcry.

The girl ran to the home of Mrs. Anna Carter, the first house, where she told of the attempted attack and where she washed her mouth. Then she was taken to the Egley home and a short time later the dean of women of the College was notified and then President Uel W. Lamkin, who reported the affair to the city and county authorities.

Attack Unsuccessful.

Miss Crouse was unharmed except for torn and bleeding lips, an injury to her side and a sprained neck, according to Mr. Wright. She was under severe nervous tension for several days, and lost consciousness on several occasions.

It was in Attorney Wright's attempt to tell the jury that the girl later had identified Gunn as her assailant that the negro attorney made his objections. The prosecuting attorney succeeded, however, in placing his statement be-

SALE OF LAND IS PROTESTED

THREE HEIRS OF LATE JOHN R. GRIMIT FILE OBJECTIONS

280 ACRES FOR $17,700

Price Paid by George P. Bainum is Declared Too Low and New Sale is Asked

Objections were filed in Circuit Court late yesterday by three heirs of the late John R. Grimit, protesting the sale of 280 acres of the estate to George P. Bainum for $17,700. The sale was made by the sheriff last Saturday under court order.

The objectors are Jordon C. Grimit, Alexander Grimit and Jesse Grimit. The first is entitled to a one-sixth interest in the estate, according to the petition, while the two others are entitled to one-thirty-sixth. There are a large number of heirs.

The sale of the 280 acres at $17,700 was an average of approximately $63. The objectors declare the land to be of "much greater value."

The objectors assert also that they "know of parties who are able and willing to buy said land" who were unable to be present at the sale of the land last Saturday. These persons, had they been present at that time, it is declared, would have paid more for the land.

The petition asks that the sale be disaffirmed and another held.

Besides the 280 acres mentioned, which is northeast of Pickering, another tract of 120 acres in the same vicinity was sold to William A. Swaney for $5,760, and several pieces of property in St. Joseph were sold for $3,885, but no objection is made to these sales.

HOMER CROY TALKS TODAY

AUTHOR IS PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT H. S. HOMECOMING

MANY ALUMNI PRESENT

Two One-Act Plays and Several Specialties Tonight Will Conclude Annual Event

"High school boys do not play football in France," Homer Croy told Maryville High School students and alumni this morning at a Homecoming program. "The reason is that the spirit of co-operation necessary for a good football team is lacking. The French are individualistic."

Mr. Croy recalled the days when he was a student in the local high school. "When you gave your fifteen rahs a while ago, it reminded me of my first visit to this school. Raw! I rode to school on an old gray mare and wore a pair of my father's pants.

"My first bit of writing was done under Miss Laura Hawkins. She assigned me a subject on the causes of the French revolution. I wrote an introduction to my paper and then copied page after page from the Encyclopedia Brittanica. When I handed in the paper, Miss Hawkins said, 'You write well'."

Mr. Croy said that after twenty-one months abroad, he was most impressed with the contrast between the different nationalities. "The Anglo-Saxon people have a higher grade of humanitarianism than the Latins. You never hear of a Frenchman dying and leaving money to charities or for civic betterment."

Mr. Croy talked on an alumni program. Martin Lewis, Jr., was master of ceremonies. The first number was a reading, "At the Matinee," by Mrs. Kenneth Fordyce. Next, Miss Marie Cloud sang two solos.

Following the talk by Mr. Croy there was a short talk by William L. Mapel, and a string quartet ended the program.

Several hundred alumni and former students were present at the program. At the start of the morning session, the alumni marched from the gymnasium to the auditorium where the exercises were held.

Two one-act comedy dramas and some high class specialities will close the event of Homecoming at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the High School auditorium.

The first play, "The Pot Boiler" put on by the Dramatics Club is a side-splitting production and uniquely worked out to meet the approval of the most disagreeable person present. The second play, "An Economical Boomerang" given by the senior class, deals with the problem that every American family has to face, that of finance and consideration of the trivial things of life. The cast for this production was well chosen and their ability to carry the various parts will make it delightful and entertaining attraction of the evening program.

The specialties that have been secured are varied and wholly entertaining.

Blames Pipe Smokers for Forest Blazes

Forest Service Says Cigarettes Not Chief Cause Of Numerous Fires On Government Property.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The good old briar has come under a cloud out in the great open spaces.

The forest service of the department of agriculture after several experiments announced that pipes are responsible for just as many forest fires as the effeminate tailor-made cigarettes. They have found that pipe dottle is more inflammable than cigar or cigarette butts and is only second in inflammability to the lighted match.

This discovery adds impetus to the campaign by foresters to use care in smoking and pipe smokers will be especially warned hereafter.

TO WORK FOR CLEANER CITY

SANITATION MEASURES SUGGESTED TO CITIZENS

WILLING TO HELP ALL

City Council and Nodaway County Health Department Co-operating in Better Health Program

An effort is under way by the City Council and the Nodaway County health department to improve the sanitary conditions in Maryville to the benift of all concerned.

As a result of recent cases of typhoid fever in the city, an investigation was launched which resulted in the discovery that impure water in wells and cisterns was directly responsible. In one family alone, it was revealed that there had been several cases of typhoid directly traceable to the impure water from the well near the home.

The impure water, it was discovered, was due to improper toilet conditions near the homes where the waste matter seeped through the soil and poisoned the drinking water supply but a few feet away.

In commenting on this condition this morning, Mayor W. O. Garrett called attention to the big expansion of the city's sewer system within the last few months. Practically every resident of the city is now within a short distance of a sewer, he said. Since January 1, thirty-eight sewer connections have been made. Sixty-three water connections have also been made, Mr. Garrett pointed out.

The members of the City Council and the Nodaway County Health Department want to co-operate with the state board of health in the latter's regulations governing sanitary toilets.

Although sewer facilities are available to practically all residents of the city, installation of the inside or flush toilets will not be made compulsory. However, it is felt that this type would not be prohibitive in cost to any resident.

The "pit" type of outside toilet is recommended by Dr. C. P. Fryer of the Nodaway County health department. The old type of toilet can easily be converted into the pit kind, Dr. Fryer said, with the expenditure of but a few dollars.

This model is recommended by the state board of health and it is believed to be the least expensive to meet the requirements.

The city or health department officials do not wish to work a hardship on any citizen, both Mayor Garrett and Dr. Fryer said this morning. On the contrary, they wish to aid all and will give the necessary help at any time.

To improve the sanitary conditions in Maryville is the object of the recommendations, it was pointed out.

It is only the well and cistern water which is giving trouble, the city water being as pure as it ever has been, recent tests show.

BEARCATS 10 AND MULES 7

AERIAL ATTACK BY MULES SCORES IN FOURTH QUARTER.

WILLOUGBHY SCORES

Eads gets place kick from 30-yard line —Game Ends With Warrensburg Drive.

By special leased wire to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune.

S. T. C. Field, Warrensburg, Mo., Nov. 6.—Championship hopes of the Maryville Teachers College eleven rose high here this afternoon as the Bearcats drove through and around th Warrensburg line for a field goal and a touchdown in the first half of today's crucial game.

An aerial attack by the Mules that gained 55 yards in three plays placed the ball on the Maryville 2 yard line. A pass, Whiteman to White scored for Warrensburg in the late part of the fourth quarter. The final score was Maryville 10 and Warrensburg 7.

COMPROMISES ON TAX CUTS

COMMITTEE AGREES ON EXEMPTIONS UP TO $3,500

BENEFITS L CLASSES

Normal and Surtax Rates Will Also Be Reduced in Order to Satisfy Insurgents

Washington, Nov. 7.—The House ways and means committee today took further steps to cut income taxes in the new revenue bill.

Additional slashes were agreed upon in both the higher and lower brackets.

Disregarding the recommendations of Secretary Mellon, the committee voted to start the surtax rate at $10,000 instead of $13,000, as suggested by Mellon.

For the little fellows, the committee boosted the conceded earned incomes from $10,000 to $20,000, double the present law. A 25 per cent reduction will be made on earned incomes.

Washington, Nov. 7—A tax-reduction bill that will be "politically bomb proof" was predicted today by Republican leaders in Congress as a result of an agreement reached in the ways and means committee, which is writing the bill behind closed doors.

The main features of the new bill, a reduction of surtaxes from 40 to 20 per cent, the exemption of all incomes below the $3,500 class and a slight reduction in the normal rates on small incomes, have been ratified.

The net effect of these and other changes of lesser importance is to remove one million taxpayers from the rolls at one sweep and reducing the government's revenue by approximately 200 million dollars annually.

The decision to do away with so many small taxpayers from the rolls was made by the Republicans as a compromise to the Democrats and Republican "insurgents."

The Democrats, under the leadership of Representative Garner of Texas, have been writing their own bill proposing complete exemption of all incomes up to the $5,000 class. This would have removed some three million taxpayers from the rolls. The Republican leaders were fearful that unless they took steps to meet the Democratic attitude, the coalition of Democrats and progressive Republicans would operate to kill the Republican bill as they did the original Mellon plan two years ago.

Now by the $3,500 exemption and the retention of the 25 per cent reduction allowed on all earned incomes as well as the reduction of normal rates from 2, 4 and 6 per cent to 1, 1½, 3 and 5 per cent, they feel that they have stolen most of the Democratic thunder.

While the rich man will have his taxes cut in half through the dropping of the surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent, the man below the $10,000 class will obtain virtually the same reduction.

CAMERON WIN 21 TO 13

FORWARD PASSES MAKE TWO TOUCHDOWNS POSSIBLE

CAMERON HALF 14 TO 0

Both Teams Weak on Defense But Strong on Offense—Small Crowd Attends Game

Cockayne made a 90-yd. open field run for a Maryville touchdown in the third quarter. Kissinger kicked goal. Score Maryville 13, Cameron 14. The quarter ended with the teams in the same standing.

In the fourth quarter the grid battle was waged in mid-field. Cameron scored again as the end of the game drew near.

At the end of the first half of the Maryville-Cameron game this afternoon on the College gridiron, Cameron was leading by a 14 to 0 score. The visiting team uncorked two passes which placed the ball within striking distance in each instance.

The first touchdow came on a pass over the goal line and the second from a quarter-back sneak.

The crowd at the game was poor for a Homecoming event, neither bleacher being completely filled. Both teams were strong when in possession of the ball, but weak defensively.

The crowd was slow in arriving at the field and many continued to come after the game was under way. The goal posts were decorated in green and black for Maryville and old gold and black for Cameron.

The Maryville band in uniform was on the field about 2 o'clock.

The starting line-up:

MARYVILLE		CAMERON
King	le	Offut
Howard	lt	Packard
New	lg	Morton
Curfman	c	Spragvy
Nichols	rg	Jones
Hall	rt	Shelton
Alsup	re	Simpson
Smith	qb	Ausman
Bratcher	rhb	Leach, capt
Cockayne	lhb	Muders
Kissinger	fb	Miller

Cameron won the toss and elected to receive the kick-off.

Eight minutes after game started the Cameron team scored and kicked goal. A forward pass to a Cameron player was the method used by Cameron in scoring against the Maryville High School. Score 7 to 0.

Cameron scored again in the first quarter and kicked goal. Score Cameron 14, and Maryville 0.

LEAGUE FACES AIR PROBLEM

MAY CODIFY NEW INTERNATIONAL AIR LAW.

TO REGULATE TRAFFIC

Three Treaties Already Filed With Geneva Body, But There Remains Much To Be Accomplished.

Geneva, Nov. 6.—The league of nations may add to its various international endeavors soon a movement to co-ordinate various European efforts at establishing "rules of the road" for the air.

Several efforts have been made lately to create and to codify international aerial law, but there remain many problems still to solve.

For instance, Switzerland would like to know its obligations as to air patrol in event of a new war. There arises, too, a question as to whether airplanes have the right to circle above the "Leonine city," where the pope has inviolable territorial rights.

Then there is the question of air rights between France and Germany. France does not allow German planes to fly over her soil or alight with impunity on French territory; and Germany returns the compliment as far as French airplanes are concerned.

Then three treaties regulating air traffic as between England and Poland; between Denmark and Poland; and between Holland and England have already been filed with the League, but there remains much to be done before definite regulations are made governing civil and military traffic in the air.

Imperialistic Policy of France Explained

This Is Reason Why United States Feels So Little Disposed To Grant Debt Concessions.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—You need maps of northern Africa and southwestern Asia to understand fully why official Washington feels so little disposed to grant debt concessions to the French while they stick to their present imperialistic policy in these two parts of the world.

If ever a country monkeyed with a buzz saw, as government heads here see it, France is doing it now in the Riff and Syria, and, still more unfortunately, not to her own danger alone, but to others' danger, too.

Why help her financially to increase the risk? Why not, rather, make it as hard as possible for her to keep it up?

By your map, you'll see that extreme northwest Africa, except for the internationalized zone of Tangier, belongs to Spain. This is the Riff country, where the tribesmen are in arms against the Spanish and French. The fighting slops over into French Morocco.

To the eastward are Algeria and Tunis, French territory. They're quiet now but it's a precarious quietness. The natives resent French rule.

To the eastward again is Tripoli, chronically in rebellion against the Italians.

Once more to the eastward is Egypt, on the ragged edge of an uprising against British semi-control.

Beyond Egypt, Syria, now at war with France—a little war but a wicked one.

This whole stretch of coast is Mohammedan and hostile to the Christian powers at best. Moslem leaders at Damascus are reported trying to raise a general "jehad," or holy war, at this time.

It isn't difficult to imagine—an outbreak extending the entire length of the southern Mediterranean shore.

Cairo—Highway engineers have announced that the Moberly-Macon hard surfaced road probably will be completed to here this week. The road is of brick.

Popular Bluff—Plans of an industrial survey are being made by business men and members of the chamber of commerce here. A similar survey is underway in Cape Girardeau.

Manager Packing Company Cured.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 27, 1925.

I have been suffering from ASTHMA for ELEVEN YEARS. I was unsuccessfully treated by three doctors in St. Paul, two in Omaha, and one asthma specialist in Kansas City, Mo., but got no relief, even temporarily, from any of them. Life was a burden—work was a torture, but I had to work. I dreaded to go to bed nights, because I would cough and smother, and my head grow full and dizzy. On December 1, I consulted Dr. Jacobs, and placed my self under his care. I improved within three days, and am now happy because I cough and smother no more, and the dizziness is all gone. I take a new interest in life, and feel deeply obligated to Doctor Jacobs for what he has done for me.

(Signed) William Kelly, Age 62
122½ Illinois Ave, St. Joseph, Mo.

Son of Prominent Farmer of Buchanan County Saved.

March 25, 1922.

I suffered from diabetes for more than a year. I passed four gallons of water daily. Grew steadily worse. No medicine or doctors helped me. My body and legs swelled to alarming proportions. I felt that I was dying if I didn't get relief. February 6, 1922, I consulted Dr. Charles Wm. Jacobs, the specialist, but had little hope of a cure. After thoroughly examining me, Dr. Jacobs said, "As sure as God reigns in heaven I can cure you." I placed myself under his treatment and improvement started. I now only pass a half gallon of water in 24 hours. The right leg terribly swollen, I feared would burst. The swellings are all gone now, and I feel and know that Dr. Jacobs has saved my life. My wife and self feel so grateful.

T. S. EVANS.

Deaf Woman Made To Hear.

St. Joseph, Mo., September 30,1922.

I applied to Dr. Jacobs, the specialist, suffering from almost complete deafness. I was unable to hear unless people spoke exceptionally loud to me. Dr. Jacobs, after giving me a thorough examination, said he could cure me. I immediately began treatment, and I can hear as well as ever before in my life. I certainly feel that Dr. Jacobs' cure in my case is almost miraculous.

That Wonderful Quaker Flavor

Is true Scotch flavor—only QUAKER OATS has it

THE one thing to remember in buying oats is that Quaker Oats has the flavor you want. The difference is great.

Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have a certain Scotch flavor.

There's real Scotch tang to that Quaker flavor.

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker flavor spoils folks for ordinary brands.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings. Faster than plain toast.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

The latter's petition states that each is entitled to one-fifth of the estate which is composed of forty acres of land in section 18, township 66, range 33, and personal property estimated at $1,583.80. There are no debts, it is stated, except for funeral expenses of $511.70.

The suit on note was filed by Fred Dodd against Don Hanna and Roy F. Hanna. He asks judgment for the face of the note, $900, with interest at 8 per cent from July 20, 1922.

CHOIR SCORES A DECIDED HIT

AUDIENCE WELL PLEASED WITH CONCERT LAST NIGHT.

MUSIC WAS APPEALING

Basile Kibalchich, Director, Had Few Characteristics of Usual Leader, But Was an Artist.

"As fine as anything of its kind that has ever come to Maryville," was the comment of many music lovers who gathered at the State Teachers College last night to hear the Russian Symphonic choir of which Basile Kibalchich is director. The appeal of the characteristically Russian music seemed emphasized by the colorful costumes of the singers, and the genuine beauty of the selections swayed the audience to encore again and again.

The program was divided into three sections, sacred songs, classical music and folk songs, all of which have a definite place in Russian national music.

Two of the selections, "La douce lumiere" by Kastalsky and "Legend of Prokles" by Tchesnokoff represent the new style Russian choral music rendered for the first time in America.

Eleven men and ten women made up the personnel of the choir, and their trained voices lost none of the rapt enthusiasm of Russian singers. Red and blue combined with much gold braid was the ensemble effect given by the costumes. The men wore long red coats with high collars opening back from the face and showing a bit of blue at the throat, and high black boots. The coats, which came to the top of the boots and allowed only a glimpse of the bagged trousers were tightly belted to give a blouse effect and were trimmed with gold braid. The women wore straight dresses of red, with gold braid down the front and around the full shirts, and blue peasant sleeves. Around their throats they wore ropes of heavy beads and on their heads crown-like headdresses, set with large brilliants.

Basile Kibalchich, director, appeared in the conventional dress suit. He had few of the mannerisms of a well known conductor. He used no music or no baton, and seemed to direct his singers by motions of particularly expressive fingers. Three of the folk songs, the well known and plaintive Volga Boatmen song and the Serbian kolo, a native game song in which the deep voices of singers imitate the sound of the hunting drums, and a lilting Czecoslovakian dance song were arranged by him, and he is the composer of "Slow and Gay" in the classical section.

Singing without accompaniment, unusual effects were attained by the choir with the peculiar swelling and dying quality of Russian music. Evident in all selections, "Tantum Ergo" by Gluck, the opening sacred song might be taken as an example. The selection hummed by the choir, and the effect of the tones of an organ is given.

Perhaps more appreciated by the audience than all others were the folk songs, especially "Koliadka," by Leontovich, a song of the New Year, and a gay comic song, "Uliana," by Kosketz, both of which were rendered by men's voices alone, and brought out forcefully the peculiar vigor of the Russian male voice.

"The Rosary," by Nevin, a soprano solo with chorus parts being sung by the entire choir, was rendered in English and was applauded by the audience because of its familiarity as well as the fineness with which it was sung.

Solo numbers, in which individual singers stood forth, were also popular with the audience. "Ave Maria," by Luzzi, a soprano solo with Ludmila Feodorova and "Prayer of St. Simeon," composed by Lvovsky, a basso solo sung by Ivan Steschenko, seemed to impress the audience most of all the sacred songs. The mighty sonorous quality of Ivan Steschenko's was brought out by the selection. He also sang the leading part in one of the men's folk songs with success.

In the classical section, solo numbers consisted of "The Nightingale," composed by Tschaiwoksky, a soprano solo sung by Alexandra Schilkevitch.

Selections which have not been commented on include the exhalting "Gloria Patri," by Greichaninoff, and the chanting "Lord, Have Mercy," by Lvovsky. Sacred songs for the evening included a fourteenth century melody, an Easter psalm by Bontniansky in three parts.

Classical music included Wagner's "Tanhauser," which was hummed, and the solemn church scene from the opera, "Christmas Eve," by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Folk songs not already mentioned were an old Spanish song arranged by Archangelsky, and a soldier marching song of Russian origin sung by men's voices alone.

George Smith, dispensor of things gustatory at the Roach Cafe, and premier trackster of the State Teachers College, "blossomed forth" with a bit of unconscious wit which rightfully should not die under the cloak of suppression.

The members of the Russian Symphonic Choir went to Roach's last night for an after-concert supper. One member of the organization attempted to voice the wants of the body to George in broken English.

After an hour, the visitors paid their check and left the place. George stood looking after them. A friend entered the door. "How's business, Smitty?"

"Rushin'."

What Nodaway County Churches Are Doing

A DELEGATION OF 40 SOUGHT

LOCAL SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

HELD AT KANSAS CITY

Sixtieth Biennial Meeting of State Council Opens November 17—Several Separate Meetings.

A delegation of forty to the biennial mass convention of the Missouri State Sunday School Council of Religious Education has been set as the goal for Nodaway County. The convention is to open in Kansas City on November 17 and continue through the 20th. It will be the sixtieth meeting of this organization.

Several members of the local council have signified their intention of attending, but the complete delegation will not be known until later. Between 2,000 and 3,000 Sunday school workers are expected at the convention, according to G. B. Roseberry, president of the Nodaway County Council.

According to Mr. Roseberry, the convention program is to be strongly educational in character, including many "institutes" or "open forum" sessions where local school workers may present their problems for discussion. A number of separate meetings will be held for workers with children, with young people, with adults, Vacation Bible School workers, and general school officers. It will take at least four persons from each church to get the full benefit of the convention, Mr. Roseberry declares.

The convention opens Tuesday morning, November 17, with a meeting of county and district officers. The main sessions begin Tuesday evening with a big mass meeting presided over by the council president, William H. Danforth, president of the Purina Mills, St. Louis. Among the speakers who will deliver addresses or conduct discussions are Prof. H. Augustine Smith, professor of music and pageantry of Boston University; Dr. Paul H. Vieth, of the International Sunday School Council; Dr. Edward Raffety, editor of the International Journal of Religious Education and for ten years editor-in-chief for the American Baptist Publication Society; John L. Alexander, director of the American Youth Foundation; the Rev. Charles Darsie, adult specialist of the United Christian Missionary Society, St. Louis; Dr. Walter D. Howell, field director, Presbyterian Board of Education; Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, elementary superintendent, Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and H. W. Becker, Walter C. Moore and Miss Harriet L. Walker of the state staff.

The delegation from St. Louis is planning to go to Kansas City on a special train. A number of groups from several other points expect to go in special cars.

FROM PRESIDENT'S COOLIDGE'S ADDRESS TO THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES.

The country . . . needs more religion.

It is my understanding that government rests on religion.

If the people are the government, it cannot rise above them.

It is necessary to do something more than to have a government treat symptoms.

I can conceive of no adequate remedy for the evils which beset society today except through the influence of religion.

The righteous authority of the law depends for its sanction upon its harmony with the righteous authority of the Almighty.

The claim of the right to freedom . . . the rule of the people have no foundation other than the common brotherhood of man derived from the common fatherhood of God.

Religion is made strong in Maryville and Nodaway County by our churches. The churches are made strong by folks attending and putting their teachings into practice. Go to Church on Sunday.

Elmo Methodist Church.

(By Edgar O. Wells, pastor Elmo Methodist Church).

Two great services marked the day last Sunday with a small attendance in the morning, but those who were present, enjoyed the blessedness of the Presense, in partaking of the Holy Communion, at the close of the morning service, and we have arranged to have such a service, bi-monthly, during the entire year. The sermon feast of the day, came at the evening hour, when Dr. Thompson delivered a great message on the Measure of the Cross. Although we have known him for nearly thirty years, it was the first time we had ever heard him preach, and he held the interest of all, during the entire service. Those who were not present surely lost a great treat. The quarterly conference was one of perfect agreement, and the outlook for the new conference year, is very bright. However, your part of it will be just what you make it.

Please do not miss a single thing in the services for next Sunday. The topic for the Sunday School lesson, is "The Responsibility of Church Membership," and the morning theme will be that the "Shepherding the Flock." Night subject: "Christ Life in Action." Prayer meeting on Wednesday night. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Horn on Thursday p. m., November 12th. Read the Bulletin for all announcements, and keep each of them in mind. They are to carry home for reference.

Sunday school starts at 9:30 o'clock and there are classes for all from the tiny tots to the grown-ups. The largest men's class in the county meets in the I. O. O. F. hall every Sunday morning and the Rev. Mr. Musgrave is the teacher. The public is cordially invited to all services.

"As yet, the severest critic of the church has never been able to offer the world a more competent instrument of human progress. Whatever else may be said about the Bible, we must agree that it is the greatest volume on Christion ethics the past has yet produced. Our program is to stand for the church, exalt the Bible and tell its wonderful story of salvation," Mr. Musgrave said.

First M. E. Church.

The Rev. J. A. Hopkins of Elkhart, Kan., will deliver a business man's message at the morning services at the First M. E. Church, Sunday. These services, which start at 10:45 o'clock will be devoted to the interest of the Missouri Methodist Hospital at St. Joseph. A PROFIT SHARING PLAN

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for November 8, 1925

Read Acts 20.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

Not very long ago where I lived there was an annual reunion of ex-confederates. I can remember years ago when the civil war was not so far in the past the streets were crowded with old soldiers and the hall was filled at every veteran reunion. On this day, just a few weeks ago, there were present just three old men of the regiment holding the re-union.

One of them caught me by the hand and said, "It is a little lonely here today. The old boys are mostly all gone but I am happy about it. I know that they are not far away, just around the corner and those I do not meet anymore here I will soon see when I turn that corner. What a reunion that will be."

Something of the feeling which this old soldier tried to express must have been, I think, in the heart of Paul that day when he stopped for a little while at Miletus and the officers of his old church at Ephesus came down to the shore to bid him farewell. Paul was on his way to Jerusalem and there was a premonition in his soul that he would never see these good friends again. This big ship was unloading and loading. I once stood on the deck of a Mississippi river steamer when it stopped at a small road landing and saw the negroes trotting from the boat to the land, bearing great loads on their heads and others coming up the gang plank carrying loads into the boat and they were all singing. Some such a scene must have taken place as Paul stood on the sands not far away from the ship, talking with his friends. He told them he would never see them again. I am sure there were tears, for we know that tears came to Paul's eyes easily, and these others were his good friends. I am sure that Paul told them that they would meet again just around the corner and what a reunion that would be.

It was about a year since the riot at Ephesus and in that time Paul had visited the churches he had founded. He was sick awhile in Philippi and Dr. Luke was with him. He visited Philippi, Thessolinica, Troas and Berrea. He called at Troas and preached to the Christians there. So eager to hear him were they that they would not let him stop and one night he kept on preaching until midnight. A young man who was sitting in a third story window went to sleep and fell to the street below. This broke up the meeting and Paul ran out, threw himself on the body and restored the young man to his mother. He was not willing that such an accident should mar his visit. Perhaps some of us go to sleep in church, but it will not pay to fall out of a third story window. No preacher could do to us what Paul did to Eutychus. If a preacher nowadays talks longer than thirty minutes we begin looking at our watches and wondering why in the name of a late dinner he does not stop.

Paul was getting to be an old man now. He had spent years in missionary work and he was a middle aged man when he began his service. He wanted to visit Jerusalem in time for the Passover and see the old friends there. He wanted to see again James who had befriended him when he was being tried for heresy. He wanted to visit in the cities nearby and to recall experiences of twenty years before and to tell of his own adventures.

It was the early spring of A. D. 58. Paul bade his friends of Ephesus goodbye and sailed away. He had intended to sail from Corinth but discovered a plan to assasinate him and changed his route. This made him late for his appointment. Sailing from Miletus the ship passed Cyprus, the old home place of Paul's friend Barnabas. I wonder if, as they passed by Paul looked across the blue water toward Cyprus and thought of Barnabas and remembered how he had been his friend in time of emergency and how he had quarrelled with that friend. I wonder if Paul regretted that quarrel?

The ship landed Paul at Tyre and he was carried ashore through the shallow water on the back of a native. Then came the march to Jerusalem. Every stick and stone here was familiar, there were some old friends in every city. The road was crowded with men and women going up to Jerusalem. With Paul were Dr. Luke, Timothy, the youngster whom Paul loved as a son, Trophemus of Ephesus and other delegates. They were carrying money from the churches to Jerusalem as a contribution and had to watch out for robbers.

This must have been a wonderful journey, the trip on foot from the sea coast to Jerusalem. Old friends came to greet Paul, every turn in the road was familiar, every village recalled incidents of twenty years before. About the camp fires in the evening the travelers gathered and their friends visited with them. They recalled previous associations and told of the things done in the work. I think that Dr. Luke had his note book out most of the time and that he got much of the information which he afterward used in writing the Acts on this very trip.

It has become fashionable nowadays for speakers to stress the idea of service and for writers to put service as the headline. The man who wants votes promises service. We of the newspaper profession are coming to the idea that a newspaper is, or should be, a public service institution. But I am afraid that in the minds of most of us when we talk of service there is back of it all an idea of reward. We will give service if you will make it worth our while. This was one of the points Paul made when he was leaving the friends at Miletus. He spoke of his own long service, of his honest service and reminded them that while he was serving them at Ephesus he made his own living at his trade. It is unselfish service that counts, not servile service which the fawning man in uniform gives you because he expects a tip. The real service is on the profit sharing plan, it brings reward alike to those who serve and those who are served. This was the kind of service Paul gave so fully to his people and this service he commended to the Elders of Ephesus and the kind he commends to us who are so many hundred years afterward read his words.

There is one other thought I get from this story of Paul and his work. He gave his life, he left aside all desire for fame, for money, for power, to give service. He took up the life which we would call an awful burden and wandered about earning his living by his hands. Yet he did not call it a burden. Some of us think Christianity is a great burden which we must carry to save our souls which would not be worth doing if that were true, and that we bear it for rewards hereafter. Many prefer to have a lot of fun now and risk the hereafter.

The Christianity which Paul preached is not a burden which bears you down and makes your steps heavy and your back tired. Christianity is a burden which lifts you up, which gives you rich rewards in the happiness of others and in knowing that you have helped, a burden which gives you to know what love means.

Christianity permits you to share with everybody the profits of a life spent rightly.

Christianity gives you the knowledge that your old friends who are not present at the reunion are just around the corner.

General Lesson Title—Paul's Farewell at Miletus.

Scripture Lesson—Acts 20. 1-38.

(Verses 25-38 printed.)

25. And now, behold I know that ye all, among whom I went about preaching the kingdom, shall see my face no more.

26. Wherefore I testify unto you this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.

27. For I shrank not from declaring unto you the whole counsel of God.

28. Take heed unto yourselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit hath made you bishops, to feed the church of the Lord which he purchased with his own blood.

29. I know that after my departing grievous wolves shall enter in among you, not sparing the flock;

30. And from among your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after them.

31. Wherefore watch ye, remembering that by the space of three years I ceased not to admonish every one night and day with tears.

32. And now I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you the inheritance among all them that are sanctified.

33. I coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel.

34. Ye yourselves know that these hands ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.

35. In all things I gave you an example, that so laboring ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.

36. And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down and prayed with them all.

37. And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck and kissed him.

38. Sorrowing most of all for the word which he had spoken, that they should behold his face no more. And they brought him on his way unto the ship.

Golden Text.—Ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20. 35.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower, hardware magnate, upon leaving the city for two months, arranges with a firm of efficiency engineers to operate his home during the time of his absence. He fails to explain his plan, however, to Constance, Billy and Alice, his three grown children. They find out about it though when

H. HEDGE, assigned to the job, arrives and takes control of the Brooke household, occupies John W.'s suite and turns the library into an office. Billy has threatened to throw him out and Constance and Alice are willing to see it done, but Hedge continues his scientific indexing unharmed. Today he has requested young Mr. Van Nest, calling on Constance, to leave the house. Constance, seeking an explanation, is asked by Hedge how she ever DARED to allow such a useless fellow to come into the house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Dared!" she echoed.

"Yes. But what astonishes me even more was the fact that he dared to call. You see, the first time I met him was this afternoon. I took pains before he left to tell him never to come again. He disobeyed me. However, I do not think he will do so again. If he should forget himself, Horace has his orders."

Constance fought back a desire to scream.

"Do I understand that you take the liberty of deciding what persons shall enter this house?" she demanded.

"It is not a liberty; it is my business."

"You insult me!"

"Far from it. I went to the pains, on the occasion I first saw him, of sparing you any embarrassment. I should have dismissed him on sight. Instead I awaited an opportunity to see him alone, as he was leaving."

"I will receive whom I please!" stormed Constance.

"No, Miss Brooke. You will receive whom I please."

There was absolute horror in her eyes.

"Please be assured that, in a general way," he added quickly, "I do not critize your friends. It is only an odd one, here and there. I have far less trouble in your case than in the case of your brother. Apparently you exercise a better natural judgment; I cannot call it a trained judgment. In passing, I will say that I do not think young Mr. Witherbee will annoy you again."

Only the night before Mr. Witherbee, a pale blond who suffered from a musical hallucination, had been a caller at the house.

"You told him—"

"Not in person. I had no opportunity except in your presence. Of course, I had no desire to embarrass you. I sent him a postal card this morning."

"A postal card!"

"One cent, you see. A letter costs two cents. We must be consistent in our economies."

Constance felt that she was losing her reason.

"A postal card!" she screamed. "That everybody can read!"

The efficiency man shrugged his shoulders to indicate that it was a matter of no importance.

"Oh! Oh! I shall go mad!"

"I think not, Miss Brooke. Possibly Mr. Witherbee will, but that might be rather desirable, inasmuch as it would probably lead to his confinement. However, I have no ill will for him."

"I will not submit!" shrieked Constance.

The efficiency man arose and glanced at his watch.

"You—you let my brother have his friends here, and I—"

"That is just exactly what I was going to see about, Miss Brooke. Your brother is entertaining some friends upstairs. I am about to drop in on them."

He left Constance in the library, dumb over the misfortunes of the Brooke family.

Outside the door of Billy's room H. Hedge paused for only an instant, then knocked twice and entered without waiting for a summons.

There were five young men seated at a table, and one of them was Billy Brooke. It was apparent that none of them had heard the knock, and also that they were still oblivious of the presence of a visitor.

"You'll have to come again," Billy said airily, as he pushed two blue checks toward the center of the table. "Mine are still looking healthy."

"That's a fine trick to play on a man's friends."

"And then some," said a slender youth who sat at his left. As he spoke, he nonchalantly shoved four blue chips away from his stack.

"I'll trot," murmered his neighbor.

"Here, too."

"I'm dead."

Billy added two chips to the pot and picked up the pack.

"Cards," he yawned.

"Help the rest," declared the slender youth wearily. "These'll do me."

"Ouch! Gimme three," said his neighbor, scowling.

"Just the top one," said the next.

The efficiency man had his eyes on Billy, who tossed aside the deck and indicated that he was satisfied with his own portion.

The four young men who had stayed in were presently reduced to two, Billy and the slender one. After two raises, Billy called.

"Mine are all pink," observed the slender one in a bored voice.

"Thirty days and a pair of typewriters," drawled Billy, facing his hand and reaching for the pot.

H. Hedge stepped forward into the room and coughed. Five young men looked up from their labors and eyed him in astonishment.

"Gambling is not permitted in this house," he said pleasantly.

The guests looked at Billy, who arose and faced the intruder.

"Here—you can't treat my friends this way!" blurted Billy.

"An error. I can, I regret the necessity—but I hereby do."

"We'll play poker whenever we want to."

"No gambling, I said.'

Billy took a step in the direction of the efficiency man. Two of his guests arose and intervened.

"Never mind, Billy," said one. "We'll go. No use to make a fuss here. Come on over to my house, the whole crowd."

They filed solemnly downstairs, Billy lingering to glare at his oppressor.

"That's a fine trick to play on a man's friends," he growled. "Turn 'em out of his house."

"Are you going with them, to resume your gambling?" inquired H. Hedge pointedly.

"You bet I am."

"Then permit me to observe, much as I deplore the game of chance, that if you keep on under-playing ten-fulls as you did that one, your friends will probably have everything but your shoes before you get home."

Billy gaped.

"There was another pat hand out," grumbled Billy, flushing.

"Piffle. How many pat fulls are dealt in an evening! As I said, I am opposed to poker. But what makes me particularly sick is to see a young man of your evident fondness for the pastime take in about four dollars, when he is entitled to watches, jewelry, overcoats and other articles of barter and trade. Run along with your friends now, and bet yourself to death on a pair of deuces. It's the logical sequence."

Billy left the room in a daze. The efficiency man stepped over to the table, picked up the cards, shuffled them deftly, sighed, shook his head and tossed them away.

As Billy passed Constance's room she called him in.

"I didn't tell, Billy," she said. "He knew it."

"Oh, I suppose so," he mumbled. "But there he is, throwing my friends out of the house. How long is this sort of business going to last, I'd like to know?"

"Well, he threw mine out," said Constance.

"How, when?"

"Tonight. He ordered Wally Van Nest out of the house and told him not to come back any more."

"What for?"

"He—he said he was futile—a waste of time."

"Well," observed Billy judicially, "you know there might be something in that, Connie."

"But I won't be insulted so!"

"That's right too."

"And he sent a postal card to Mr. Witherbee, telling him not to come any more. A postal card!"

"Who? To Sherry Witherbee?"

"Sherry? Albert, you mean, don't you? His name's Albert."

"Everybody calls him Sherry."

Constance was puzzled.

"I never heard it before," she said. "Why do they call him Sherry?"

Billy laughed and started downstairs.

"Look in the sideboard," he counseled.

Constance pondered so much over Billy's counsel that she forgot her troubles for a moment. "Sherry" Witherbee. She did not understand at all. His name was Albert Huntington Witherbee, and the only part of his first name that he used was the A. Look in the sideboard? Her curiosity became so keen that she decided to do so.

She went downstairs softly and made her way to the dining-room, where she snapped on the lights. The sideboard was a huge mahogany affair, heavy and substantial. What in the world did it have to do with Mr. Witherbee, who did not resemble it in the least? Look in it, Billy said.

She did. The lower compartments were filled with bottles of all sorts and shapes and she surveyed them idly, not having the least idea what she was looking for. There were cordials of every kind, but none of them suggested an answer to the riddle.

Constance searched further. The whiskies did not supply any explanation, either. Nor the brandies. Mr. Witherbee never used such things.

A bottle in a corner arrested her glance. "Sherry," it said on the label. Constance looked closer. Yes; there was more printing. This:

PALE, SOFT AND NUTTY.

She curled up on the floor, rolled over and laughed until the tears streamed down.

NEXT: A scientific yuletide.

Pickering

O. G. NULL.

George Williams resigned his position as patrolman on the State Highway No. 27 last week and Virgil Morehouse was appointed in his stead and began his work Monday morning.

Mr. Williams has moved to the Morehouse farm, two miles east of Hopkins, where he will gather seventy acres of corn for Mr. Morehouse, who moved his household goods to Pickering and will occupy the Coler property in the west part of town, which Mr. Williams has occupied the past summer.

M. L. Rickard arrived home last Saturday, from Forbes, N. D., where he has been working in the harvest fields for two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reynolds moved this week from the W. A. Burks farm, southeast of town to the Joe Golay farm, south of Sun Rise school house.

The special sale day put on by our merchants last Saturday brought quite a few people to town and all the stores report a good day's business.

The ladies' of the Wesleyan Society of the M. E. Church did well with their bazaar and dinner, the proceeds of the day being over $100.

Corn husking is progressing very slowly on account of the fields being so soft that it is impossible to pull out a full load of corn. Some huskers are using four horses in order to get out with a load, while others are making a trip to the crib and unloading when they get about fifteen to twenty bushels.

There is complaint of a great deal of corn being on the ground in some fields and of it being in bad condition on account of so much wet weather.

What Jerry Says

I met the fairest maiden,
On the street the other day,
Her hair was fixed the nicest,
In the very latest way.

Her dress was made to order,
In the very latest style,
Her eyes were shining brightly,
And she wore the sweetest smile.

Her skirts were just the proper length,
(My swearing please excuse)—
For "Gosh" this maiden wore a pair
Of flopping over-shoes.

Leaves School Board.

At the meeting of the Stanberry Board of Education last Friday night Cleo Gregg offered his resignation from that body. The Gregg family will move shortly on a farm near Clearmont, Mo. Mr. Gregg was vice-president of the board, and his resignation was accepted by that body.—Stanberry Owl-Headlight.

To Enforce Auto License Law.

A letter to The Times from Charles U. Becker, secretary of state, informs us that many complaints have reached his office from citizens of Worth county that automobile owners here were operating cars with no license, or with last year's license, or with only one tag. Mr. Becker states that one of his inspectors was sent to this county last week to make an investigation, and that his report is not at all satisfactory.—Grant City, Worth County Times.

Saves Baby From Fire.

The presence of mind of Iva, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval McDonald of the Crab Orchard neighborhood, in all probability averted the burning to death of their 8-months old baby, Wednesday evening of last week, when a gasoline lantern exploded, setting fire to the kitchen.

Iva and Helen Shackelford were pumping air into the lighted lantern when it exploded, throwing blazing gasoline to the ceiling and about the floor. Mrs. McDonald was at the stove preparing supper. Junior was playing on the floor.

Mrs. McDonald seized the lantern and ran to the door throwing it out into the yard. It left a trail of burning gasoline across the floor. Iva dragged Junior out of the way and then saw that the clothes of the baby were on fire. She immediately tried to beat out the flames and when Mrs. McDonald returned from throwing the lantern she seized some old clothing and threw it over the baby smothering the flames.

By this time Mr. McDonald and Elwood Shackelford had reached the house from the barn and soon put out the fire in the room.

The baby received some slight burns but is not seriously hurt.—Gallatin Democrat.

3-Months Old Baby Talks.

Ardath, the three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Long, who live on the Chas. Boner farm, talks to her mother, in a fashion that is almost uncanny. The young baby is a fully developed youngster, and the mother notices that she is no different from any other child, except that she is nervous.

When Ardath was two months old, she surprised her mother one day by saying, "Take or I'll cry." She was cooing four days after she was born, according to her mother.

This baby is the tenth child in the family, and there are six girls and four boys. Mrs. Long said Tuesday that all of the children talked when they were young.—Stanberry Owl-Headlight.

Road Paving Much Delayed.

Having moved the concrete mixer and other equipment to the fair grounds and starting south on October 10 the bad weather has prevented the contractors, List & Weatherly from continuing with their paving contract on the East St. Joseph road. Only an opportunity of seven days of paving has been possible since that time, making a total from the the fair grounds south of 2,615 feet.

This leaves a gap of a mile and 70 feet to be filled between the fair grounds and Stop 31. Then the paving will be continuous to Stop 19 when paving would have begun there. This mile would means six miles of continuous paving on the east road. The contractors will no doubt be required to have the time of completition extended from January 1. The bad weather has made the expense unusually great and delayed the completion of the work.—Savannah Reporter.

County Health Service To Be Discontinued.

At the meeting of the Gentry County Court this week it was voted to discontinue the County Health Department which has been maintained here the past three years. The first year of this service the state of Missouri and the Rockefeller Foundation each bore one-fourth the total cost; the Gentry County Red Cross Chapter paid a good part of the other half, the county court agreeing to pay as much as it had been costing to pay a county physician. To meet the salaries of the county health officer, the county health officer, the county nurse and the stenographer and to carry traveling and office expenses has taken a total of about $7,000 a year.

For the year 1923-24 the county court paid $1,200 of the total expenses. Last year the county paid about $3,400 of the department costs, and for the coming year, owing to a shortage of funds in the state health department, it would probably have cost the county better than $4,000 to have continued the service here. So the judges wisely decided that, in view of the shortage of finances for taking care of heavy bridge demands, road costs, etc., it was best to discontinue the health department.—Albany Capital.

Judge Wars On Bootleggers.

Judge John L. Schmidt of Chillicothe, who succeeded Judge Arch B. Davis in the thirty-sixth judicial circuit a few months ago, has little patience with bootleggers, it was indicated last week in circuit court at Gallatin. According to C. C. Ross, a local attorney, who was in Gallatin attending court, the Chillicothe judge assessed the maximum sentence, five years' imprisonment, on a man convicted last week of selling intoxicating liquor. A jury found the accused man guilty but left punishment to the judge, who lost no time in pronouncing a heavy sentence.—Bethany Clipper.

Dog Causes Wreck.

A large dog that ventured onto the Jefferson Highway pavement near the Charley Wiley farm, southwest of Bethany, Sunday afternoon caused the wreck of a Ford coupe and the injury of two of its occupants, when the car went off a bank and struck a telephone pole.

In the car were Mr. and Mrs. James Nickerson, of New Hampton, with Mrs. Nickerson's father, Mr. Clark. They were driving to Bethany to hear Dr. E. Violette at the Christian church when they came to the corner by the Brady schoolhouse. The dog got in the way, and in an attempt to avoid striking the animal the Ford went off the pavement. The dog is said to have been struck, but after the smash it could not be found.—Bethany Republican.

Closing Grain Review

London, Nov. 6—Grains sagged in today's session on the Board of Trade. Wheat led in the weakness.

Feature of wheat trade was continuation of the highly nervous undertone. Fluctuations were erratic. The market passed quickly from an overbought to an over-sold condition on several occasions. Sentiment was more favorable to the selling side late because of the heavy marketing of Canadian grain. This new feature promises to become a market factor. Locals were the best sellers of corn. The market showed the effects of recent short covering. Commission houses bought on resting orders.

Oats were neglected as usual.

Provisions made moderate gains. Liberal buying followed export inquiries.

NOBODY LOVES YOU

It is impossible to get anywhere if you are a crab. Nobody loves you. To be successful you must have a kindly, lovable disposition. You can not have this with an unhealthy liver and stomach. They don't go together. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has given complete and permanent results in thousands of such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.—Adv.

Winning Team To Represent Nodaway In Northwest Missouri Meet At Teachers College.

The Nodaway County Indoor Basketball Tournament will be held at the Maryville High School gymnasium tomorrow. The winner in this series of contests will then represent Nodaway County in the Northwest Missouri Tournament, which will be held in the new College gymnasium on November 21 and 21.

Last year a most successful tournament was held. Twelve boys' teams were entered in the tournament and eight girls' teams. From reports this year an even larger entry list is expected.

In order to qualify for the tournament the teams must have played a certain number of games against other competing teams in the county. No account is made as to whether the games were won or lost.

The drawing for the bracket arrangement will be made at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in the high school gymnasium. Play will start immediately after the drawing and will continue through the day. At night the finals in both boys and girls division will be played. The winner of each division will receive a silver loving cup, and the runner-up teams will receive basketballs. In addition to the selection of the winning team, a "Mythical County" team will be picked by the coaches of the teams entered in the contests. Each coach will submit Saturday night his choice on the honor team and a tabulation will be made, the players receiving the highest vote for the respective places will be named on the team. Gold basketballs will be presented to the players gaining recognition on the All-Star selections.

The officials for the tournament are: L. E. Ziegler, floor manager; John Smith and Kenneth Livengood, score keepers; H. L. Raines, time-keeper; Ray Blomfield of the State Teachers College referee of the girl's games; Ray Hann of Burlington Junction, referee of the boy's game; Hubert Garrett and Alva Burch, in charge of the doors.

Ed Adams is in general charge of the tournament.

Pickering boys and Skidmore girls were the winners in the Nodaway County tourney last year and represented the county in the Northwest Missouri tournaments.

The following boys' teams will compete in the tourney tomorrow: Elmo, Quitman, Skidmore, Graham, Barnard, Pickering, Parnell, Ravenwood, Conception Junction, Guilford, and Burlington Girls' teams from the following schools will meet: Elmo, Skidmore, Graham, Barnard, Parnell, Ravenwood, Guilford, and Burlington Junction.

Neither Maryville nor Hopkins will have teams in the tournament, by a ruling made at the first of the season.

Oldest High School Alumnus Says Modern Youth Is No Worse Than Boys and Girls of Old

"The high school boy and girl of today is not a whit less worse than the boy and girl of 1884."

This statement was given out in an interview with the oldest alumnus of the Maryville High School, John Spickerman, now living in the city and who was present at the alumni exercises held this morning at the school building.

"The newspapers are almost continually picturing crimes as the work of high school boys or girls. I do not judge schools by outside crimes and cannot say that students of today are inferior in comparison to the days gone by. Its all sensationalism."

The fact that Mr. Spickerman was the oldest alumni in attendance did not hinder his enthusiasm and dull his appreciatiin of the occasion, for as he said, "I love the very name of Maryville High School and a student never becomes too aged to think back over his school days and to re-live high school life and spirit."

It was in the year of 1883 when Maryville was but a small town, destined to become what she is today, that John Spickerman took up abode in this city, the educational center of Northwest Missouri. He was at that time a small lad. In the fall of 1884 he entered high school, a small structure with but few facilities, as it was the first high school building that Maryville had. H. E. Beard was then superintendent and the high school principal was B. F. Duncan. The only teacher was Miss Alice Hayworth, who later went to Japan as a missionary. The west side of the school building was used as a study hall, while the north side was given over to Miss Hayworth's classes. A class met in the office of Superintendent Beard.

"There was nothing to early school life but text book work. There were no gymnasiums, nc orchestra and no athletics to add to school life and make it half of what the students have in this school period.

If the high school student had to suddenly go back to Mr. Spickerman's day, he might object to the school hours for they were quite different than the present. Classes began work at 9 o'clock and closed at noon. The afternoon session was opened at 1:30 o'clock and closed at 4:30 o'clock.

The courses which the school offered at this time, were mathematics, including algebra, geometry and higher arithmetic, rhetoric and literature, Latin, including two books of Caesar, Virgil and Cicero, General History, Science and physics, zoology, physical geography and bookkeeping.

"The student of my day depended for his study period at the regular studying hour and very few depended on home study.

"Whenever a boy did study at home I usually was called upon to assist him," Mr. Spickerman said.

The first class to ever be graduated from the Maryville High School, was in the year of 1887. There were only three members of the class, which were Miss Cora Snapp, Vesta Beard and John Bellows who recently has written a book on rural life.

It was in 1888 that John Spickerman and four of his classmates were graduated and handed a roll of paper, the "diploma." The others who graduated with him were Arch Edwards, Mayme Chambers, L. Moore.

"Classes in my time were very small and through that reason, the old time graduating classes were overcharged with orations. Each graduate was to give an oration. Through the years as classes began to increase the old system of oratory was done away with and a special speaker secured to do the talking."

"If I were ever asked to advise a student I would say finish high school. It has aided me and the boy or girl that forgets its true value will in old age look back in sorrow to a lost yesterday. The tenets of success never change while school conditions do. The best way to succeed for a high school student is to be active, be fair, form good habits, use self-control to an advantage and possess some ambition and focus ideals in worth-while directions."

"I am a strong believer in Homecoming day," the alumnus declared. "Its a joy for me to be able to come back to the old M. H. S. and see the students of today in this great age of educational progress. Homecoming adds to the enthusiasm of the alumni."

The things you think you get for nothing cost more than those you think you pay for.

Girl Points To Assailant

fore the jury.

Mr. Wright stated that the city street light at the corner of Seventh andWalnut streets cast its rays full upon the girl's assailant, while there was light also from the windows of the girls dormitory, a short distance away.

The first witnesses for the state were the father and mother of Miss Crouse, who sat with her during the trial. President Lamkin was the third witness.

Girl's Story Unshaken.

Miss Crouse took the stand when the court reconvened after its noon recess. Her story was the same in every detail as that which the prosecuting attorney had outlined.

She appeared to be under a great nervous strain, twisting her handkerchief and frequently covering her eyes with her hand. She retained her composure, however, and answered all questions firmly.

When Prosecuting Attorney Wright had elicited the complete story from the girl, including the identification, the defense attorney sought to discredit it by calling attention to the darkness and by attacking several details in her testimony, but she refused to be shaken.

As a recess was taken, the girl seemed near fainting, but recovered when given a glass of water.

A change of veune was granted in the suit of the First National Bank of Savannah against Knox Alexander. The case will be tried in Harrison County.

In the case of K. D. Cross against Roy Judah and others, an order of default was set aside and an alias attachment writ was ordered.
